School aims at making kids future-ready and environment-sensitive

GD Goenka Public School, Sarita Vihar aims at tapping many facets of learning and stimulating the process of making the students not only future-ready as global citizens but also sensitive towards others and their environment.

The school management says, "The institution enables its students to exhibit their creative talents and leadership skills through a plethora of activities. Inculcating experiential learning through strategic engagement of students, generating sensitivity towards the environment and instilling values for life is the primary objective of the school."

"The plantation drive conducted in school gives the students an opportunity to plant saplings in the school lawns and collectively discuss global issues like water conservation, climate change, etc," the management says, adding, "The community outreach program is another effort towards sensitising

Plantation drive, community outreach program, inter-house competitions, etc are conducted in the school the students about the needs of the less fortunate by interacting with them. It aims at embracing diversity, empowering certain sections of the society and empathizing with each individual's struggles."

The management further says, "The value of the month is a beautiful way to reinforce a different virtue each month. Acquiring personal values as motivational goals and principles that guide appropriate behaviour for life, values are gained in the process of value-based assemblies, art and craft activities, role play, story narration and sharing experiences." "Inter-house competitions conducted in the school, provide innovative ways of imbibing values on important issues like 'water conservation' and 'saving the planet' while also enlightening students about the mindfulness required to use resources sustainably," it adds.
