

School empowers students to contribute towards society

View of the school

At GD Goenka Public School, Sarita Vihar, learning aims to develop aware and sensitive citizens, who are empathetic to others' needs. As it opens its doors for admissions for the 2025-26 academic session, the school's management says, "At our school, knowledge blooms alongside kindness with the Community Outreach Program. Our school works closely with renowned NGOs like Goonj, Cheshire Home and HelpAge India for the program, which includes volunteer activities, environmental initiatives, and educational support. It encourages students to step beyond the classroom and contribute towards society."

According to the team, this year some of school's students were recognised as young champions of change by HelpAge India, when they participated in the launch of a campaign, Generations Together, in the presence of the NGO's honorary brand ambassador, veteran actress Sharmila Tagore.

"The Joy of Giving, our annual community fair, was held following a year-long preparation by students and teachers, who created artworks that were sold on the culmination day. The proceeds from the same were extended to various partner NGOs. Such initiatives help instill entrepreneurial skills as well as effective communication and interpersonal skills among students," they said.

The school actively engaged students in various enriching activities like plantation drives and Swatchata Pakhwada aimed at fostering awareness and sensitivity towards our environment, the team noted. The team added, "Recently, the school took on the initiative to contribute towards homeless children and organised a visit to Welfare Home for Children, which enabled students to interact with sections of the society that need our care and also inculcated the value of gratitude."

Through this program, students not only learn the value of service but also develop teamwork skills, the team observes. "The school emphasises upon the importance of giving back to the community, and cultivating compassion and responsibility in the students," they added.

Address: J Block, Sarita Vihar

"The school emphasises upon the need for giving back to the community, and cultivating compassion among students," the management says